

Sarah Breslin

is Executive Director of the European Centre for Modern Languages of the Council of Europe.

A passionate linguist with a thorough understanding of policy and practice in language education, Sarah began her career as an EFL teacher and has held various teaching and management positions in different sectors and countries (further and higher education, qualification awarding bodies and government bodies supporting schools) .

Before taking up post as Director of the ECML, Sarah was Director of SCILT, Scotland's National Centre for Languages and of the Confucius Institute for Scotland's Schools.